

The following includes a little bit of translation. [Victim 1] mostly wrote in English but switched to Tagalog in places. Please see Document 2A for the original handwritten version.

It was last August 2012, I awoke and was told I was called to Kuya Toto's office. I've forgotten the reason he called me but before I left [his office] he stretched out his arms for me to hug him. Then asked me to kiss him on the cheeks. I did. After that, he asked me to kiss him on his lips, which make me stop to ask, "Why?", "I don't want to" ... He said, "Just a quick one" (a smack). I could have just walked away if I was near the door, but his arms were holding my waist. So I did and I run into our kitchen and I wetted my lips with water.

I didn't told anyone, I was just being positive that maybe it doesn't really mean anything. Yet another day came, like after 1 week. It happen again, he asked me again for it (I came to the office to ask for an extension, there was no one in the office only Kuya Toto on his desk so I had no choice but asked him, before he could say "Yes"... he said, "hey, give me a kiss) ...I really don't want to, deep inside of me, "I am getting confused and I am afraid."

Then the third time came again when he called me to his office room. I was a bit nervous inside of me, though I wasn't sharing it to him. At this time, [Witness A] is on the other side of the room. Before leaving he stretched again his arms for a hug (he was sitting on his chair). Then he asked again for me to kiss him on the lips, a smack. .. I spoke up, "Kuya, I don't want to". He signaled me to be quiet as [Witness A] is in the room next to his (only a wall separates them) I felt my heart beat fast, then I did it but this time was very disgusting to me.. When I was going to smack him on the lips, I felt his lips open. My mind started racing,.. This is different! I was shocked, I felt his saliva on mine and I immediately move away. With a fake smile, I quickly walk away. And run into the water to wash it away.

washed it away. This time I am very much aware that something is wrong that if I keep agreeing, that he will do something worse to me. Therefore I quit going to his office. Whenever I am alone, it keeps running into my head, especially the 3rd time....

(I have told [Witness A], what happen next after this, ...how it ends that he comes out clean and I came out that I was just thinking negatively)

I know that I am under his authority and no matter what I said to reason out... He always comes out right... Sometimes he twists my mind with his words... and I end up giving in.. the most painful thing he said to me before was.. "I don't care about you!" but right now, I just choose to forgive.
